Introduction (by Dr Helen Bates)

NOTE: This folio of biographies was largely compiled during 2020 and 2021 by a team of volunteers working with Bright Ideas Nottingham as part of the Legacy Makers Project, funded by the National Lottery Heritage Fund. The pages of biography in this document relate specifically to the St Matthew's grave markers, however the index includes and can be cross-referenced to people in the main document of biographies, published separately.

Legacy Makers is a community-led history project which commenced in 2019 with the bicentenary of St. Matthew's Church in Darley Abbey. St. Matthew's Church was built by mill owner Walter Evans. Volunteers are exploring the biographies of mill workers at this pivotal time in British industrialisation. By examining available primary source material, including census data and nineteenth-century burial slabs in St. Matthew's church yard, this research is attempting to piece together the lives of mill workers. (Fig. 1).

This work is building upon previous phases of the Slave Trade Legacies project which explored the hidden connections between the Derwent Valley Mills World Heritage Site and the history of enslavement through the supply of raw cotton from the Americas. This research is being undertaken to gain a more nuanced understanding of the effects of the cotton trade and textile manufacture on both sides of the Atlantic and the key differences which separate them. So often research into industrialisation becomes impersonal and statistical. Here we examine glimpses of the life and experiences of named individuals who are known to have worked at the mills.

The biographies project entailed two main areas of focus:

1. To investigate the biographies of the former residents of Darley Abbey who are commemorated on small marker slabs in St Matthew's churchyard.
2. To investigate the evidence of migration of workers to and from the cotton mills and paper mills at Darley Abbey. The cotton mills began operation in the 1780s and by the mid-19th century were a flourishing supplier of yarn to a global market. The paper-mill began operation much earlier in the 18th century, and continued production throughout the 19th century. The mills employed not only 'process workers' who manufactured paper products and cotton yarn, but also others such as managers, carters, warehouse workers and clerical staff. The mills also employed people such as fitters, who maintained the machinery, and turners who made the bobbins onto which the thread was spun.

The biographies include those people who are described in the 1841, 1851 and 1861 censuses as being connected with papermaking or cotton manufacture. It has been assumed that the residents of the Darley Abbey, Allestree and Little Chester census districts were within walking distance of the Darley Abbey site, so the biographies catalogue each of those settlements. The census documents have been cross referenced with parish registers of baptisms, marriages and burials. Some newspaper reports have also been located to provide additional detail.

A sub- group is made-up of individuals named on the marker slabs at St Matthew's churchyard. The township at Darley Abbey was constructed for mill workers, so these are believed to commemorate people who were directly connected with the Evans' business.

History of Darley Abbey (by Dr Helen Bates)

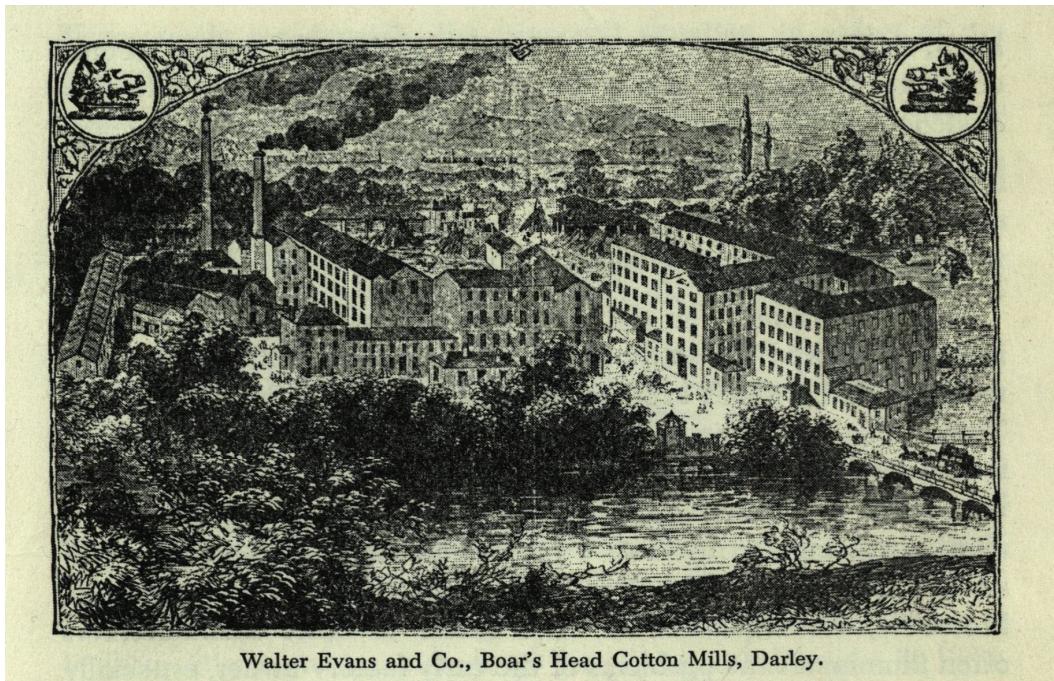

Fig: 2: Boars Head Mill.²

Darley Abbey Mills, historically known as Boar's Head Mill, is one of the finest examples of an early-industrial cotton manufacturing community and has been internationally recognised by UNESCO since 2001 as part of the Derwent Valley Mills World Heritage Site (DVMWHS).³ The site contains four principle settlements of outstanding industrial heritage: Belper, Cromford, Darley Abbey and Milford, all of which derived their lifeblood from the strong currents of the river Derwent, which was used to power the series of cotton mills.⁴ Darley Abbey has a rich and vibrant industrial heritage stretching back to the 12th century when it was the site of a house of Augustinian canons. After the Dissolution of the monastery in 1538, the site was exploited for riverside location and played host to a series of industrial enterprises including a corn mill, flint mines and a paper mill throughout the 17th and 18th centuries. The land at Darley Abbey was acquired by Thomas Evans, a wealthy banker and industrialist, in 1778. Based on the entrepreneurship of the Evans family, along with partnership from the illustrious Richard Arkwright of Cromford and Stutts of Belper, Darley Abbey cotton mill began operation in 1782 and maintained an active role in the manufacture of textiles in the city of Derby until the late 1960s.⁵

The Evans family have maintained a respectable image; their character has been described as benevolent and paternalistic and this is articulated in their construction of housing in Darley Abbey.⁶ The Evans sought to cater for the social wellbeing of their workers to keep them content. The cotton mill brought a massive expansion to Darley Abbey. Work began from the early 1790s to construct purpose-built workers housing as well as social amenities.⁷ A self-sufficient workers community was established, complete with houses, St. Matthew's Church (added in 1819) and a schoolhouse (1826).⁸ Provisions for education within Darley Abbey were made before this date however, with the maintenance of a school room in the attic of Long Mill since 1791 and between 1797-8, houses Nos. 3-16 on Brick Row were constructed with each block containing a school room on the second floor with the intention of replacing or supplementing existing provisions in the attic of the mill.⁹

In 1834 central government undertook an evaluation of conditions for children working in Britain's mills and factories. The 1834 Royal Commission on the Employment of Children in Factories provides an in-depth analysis of workers' lives, their health and the conditions of mills and factories across the country.¹⁰ The commission visited mills throughout the Derwent Valley which allows our volunteers the opportunity to cross-reference conditions and social amenities mill owners created for their employees. After a period of expansion starting in 1795 and continuing into the mid-nineteenth century, the Evans family created a self-sufficient workers community at Darley Abbey complete with educational facilities, a place of worship, a dinner house and watch-houses to ensure the security of the site. This research, coupled with census data from the mid-nineteenth century and the burial slabs in St. Matthew's church yard, provides the basis for the project.

Research and methodology (by Dr Stephen Walker)

This project was compiled by a team of dedicated volunteers in partnership with Bright Ideas Nottingham in order to gain an insight into the lives, migration patterns and family histories of individuals who lived and worked in Darley Abbey during the late-eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. During the extension of the west end of St. Matthew's Church in 1965, burial slabs from the 19th century were unearthed and put on display in the grounds of the Church, which include names, age and date of death.¹¹ As the project commenced, these burial slabs were transcribed and research into family history was undertaken by volunteers from the Darley Abbey Historical Group with the intention of forming a more nuanced understanding of the lives of mill workers.¹² The volunteers used records available through Ancestry.com to undertake research into family history, principally gathering evidence from the 1841, 1851 and 1861 censuses. The census provided vital data such as family relationships, places of birth and of death, which have been used to create a complex web of biographies for the mill workers. Volunteers traced where some of these workers migrated from, how long they spent in Darley Abbey and what happened to the next generation. The project mainly focuses on the censuses of 1851 and 1861 to investigate two distinct groups: those who are connected to the occupations of cotton or paper manufacture in the 1861 census, and those who are named on the burial slabs. This information has been cross referenced with other available primary sources such as parish records and newspaper articles. The information has been collated using a relational database, allowing for further analysis, such as the creation of maps and charts.

The research database has been used to create biography sheets, which are to be collated and made available at the archives, local history library, Derby University library, and Derbyshire Family History Society. This information will be accessible free of charge and for the benefit of family history researchers and historians; a record of the names of over 1500 mill workers and their families who worked at the Darley Abbey mills.

Introducing the data

The numbered pages of biographies are presented in family groups roughly in alphabetical order. Each individual has been assigned a unique identification number (personID) that has been used to cross-reference relationships like parents with their children and vice versa. An alphabetical index of names/page numbers and numerical index of personID/ page numbers can be found at the end.

Commonly used abbreviations

- Relationships:

- s = son of...
- d = daughter of...
- nk = not known
- H = husband
- W = wife
- MiL / FiL / SiL / DiL = mother/father in-law and son/daughter in-law
- wdw / wdwr = widow / widower
- GS / GD = grand-son / grand-daughter

- Records

- PRO is used in relation to the St Catherine's registers of births, deaths and marriages, in the format year/quarter, place/county, volume, page
- Bap = baptism (usually a church register record)
- Bir = birth (usually a PRO record)
- Bur = burial (usually a church register record)
- Dea = death (usually a PRO record)
- M or marr = marriage, 2M = 2nd marriage etc
- Dates are in the format year/month/day for example, 1852/03/14

- Status, age and employment

- Relating to dates, abt = about
- occ = occupation
- CH = 'cotton hand', or 'cotton factory worker' in the enumerators notes.
- CS = 'cotton spinner' in the enumerators notes.
- FWK = framework knitter
- lab = labourer
- The symbol ~ (after a surname) indicates that it is not their birth-name.

- Places of origin

- Darley Abbey is abbreviated to DA throughout.

Counties have been abbreviated to standardised codes (referring to the pre-1974 counties).

The most commonly used are...

- BKM – Buckinghamshire
 - CHS – Cheshire
 - CUM – Cumberland
 - DER - Derbyshire
 - DEV – Devon
 - HAM – Hampshire
 - HRT – Hertfordshire
 - KEN – Kent
 - LAN – Lancashire
 - LEI – Leicestershire
 - LIN - Lincolnshire
 - NTT - Nottinghamshire
 - OXF – Oxford
 - SOM – Somerset
 - SSX – Sussex
 - STS – Staffordshire
 - WAR – Warwickshire
 - WOR - Worcestershire
 - YKS – Yorkshire which also includes
[WRY = West Riding or NRY = North Riding]

The 1841 census indicates birthplace as inside (in) or outside (o/s) the county of residence.

NOTES

Harriet Bull was born in 1838 in Loughborough, where her father was a tailor. Her brothers and sisters were born in Loughborough up until 1849, after which the family moved to Darley Abbey. In 1851 and 1861, Harriet was living with her parents and working as a cotton spinner at the Darley Abbey mills. She was married to Samuel Smedley, a dyer in Darley Abbey, in 1861, and their children were born there over the next few years. Harriet and her family were living in Darley Abbey in 1871, however she died in 1877. She was buried in the churchyard at St Matthew's and a plaque in her memory was placed on her grave.

NOTES

Thomas was born in Chellaston, where his father was a shoemaker. He probably moved to Darley Abbey with his parents about 1822. He married in 1832 and his abode was recorded as 'of Darley'. He worked as a journeyman sawyer in 1841, and was living in Erasmus Street in the St Alkmund's district of Derby. In 1851 he lived in the same street and was employed as a mechanic. His wife Sarah was buried at Darley Abbey in 1858, and around that time he moved to live in Cotton Mill Yard (census 1861 & 1871). In 1871 he was described as the head mechanic at the cotton factory.

NOTES

He was born and married in Darley Abbey. He moved to Shotley Bridge DUR, Manchester LAN and the Isle of Man as a young adult, because some of his children were born there. Shotley Bridge paper mill opened in 1788, one of the first mechanised papermills in the north of England. Chorlton-cum-Medlock had a large papermill which was destroyed by fire in 1833. In 1827 when Harriet was christened they were living in the poorhouse in the St Alkmunds district of Derby. Paper making on the Isle of Man began in the 1780s, and was important in the first quarter of the 19th century. He spent his most of working life 1841 - 1871 as a papermaker at the Darley Abbey mills.

NOTES

An infant death. From his age at death in December 1858 at Darley Abbey, he was born about June 1857, It is likely that he was the son of Titus and Harriett Elliott - deduced from (1) there is a gap between 1856-1860 for other children recorded as born to this couple (2) all his presumed siblings have forenames beginning with "E" (Eliza, Edmund, Elizabeth, Eleanor, Ebenezer, Ezbon) and (3) the name Ernest appears in other generations of the family. As he was only 18 months old when he died, little is recorded in history for Ernest Elliott, but he does have two interesting characters in his immediate family.

NOTES

It is probable that this is the same Mary Wain of London Road, St Peter's, Derby on the 1841 census as a 65 yr old 'Dectress' with 25 year old son Joseph, silk thrower, Henry a 25 year old labourer, Elizabeth 20 year old Dress maker (wife of Joseph) lodgers, Abraham ?, net maker and Thomas Taylor, silk throwster. Joseph's birth in 1814 is also to William and Mary, St Peter's Derby. In occupation is written 'Quack & Labourer'. Curate is Matthew William Staines. Did he write this in without William's knowledge. Henry's baptism 1817, William is a 'plaisterer'.
